

ABSTRACT

A wireless communication device comprising a search means and a detection means, wherein the search means searches for a peripheral device when the detection means detects that 5 the peripheral device is likely to be utilized by the wireless communication device.